VOL. III. GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CAL., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1908. No. 43

TRUSTEES' MEETING.

All members present except Mr. Jennings.

The following demands were referred to the finance committee:

F. Woodbeck, labor street dept..	$ 8.00
F. R. Sinclair, salary, etc.....	82.30
O. Frohlich, labor street dept...	1.50
Frank Comargo, labor street dept	1.00
Riggs & Sherer, publishing.....	11.32
Wm. L. Nelson, marshal.....	10.00
Fred'k Baker, salary, as atty....	60.00

Demands 434, 435 and 436 previously referred to the finance committee, were referred favorably by said committee and warrants ordered drawn on the general fund in payment of the same.

The street superintendent reports of amounts due for rebate on curbs on Fifth street east of Glendale avenue was received and approved.

The final report of tax collector on taxes of 1907-08 showing, property sold to the city of Glendale for delinquency, and stating that he holds a surplus of $28.59 due to errors in computing the tax roll. On motion the tax collector was instructed to pay the said surplus into the treasury.

A deed from L. C. Brand and Mary Louise Brand to the city of Glendale, dated Feb. 4th, 1908, and another from same parties dated Feb. 5th, 1908, was accepted and ordered placed on record. A resolution was then adopted naming a certain street in the city of Glendale as Brand Boulevard.

An ordinance passed second reading which establishes the grades of a portion of Orange, Fourth, Kenwood, Seventh, southerly side of Doron, Third, Howard, Mary and Geneva streets, Central avenue and Brand Boulevard.

The city engineer presented a map showing present location of electric lights, telegraph and telephone poles on Brand Boulevard, which was adopted.

Ordinance No. 65, "An ordinance prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within the city of Glendale, except in the manner therein provided," was taken up for a second reading.

Trustee Watson occupied the chair while Mr. Parcher presented and moved the adoption of the following amendment, "Provided that this ordinance shall not be deemed to prohibit the furnishing of intoxicating liquors by a bona fide club, having a membership fee of $50 or more, the members of such club or their guests."

Mr. Parcher made a strong plea for the adoption of his amendment, but it failed to meet with a second and the ordinance was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes: Anderson, Watson, Campbell.
No: Parcher.

During the general debate which followed the reading of the resolution, the Rev. S. L. Ward, Elias Ayers and Edgar Leavitt spoke in opposition to the amendment, and Mr. Stanley in favor of it.

Trustee Campbell expressed himself with a good deal of feeling in regard to the subject; he thought that possibly the ordinance infringed to some extent upon individual rights, and criticised the church people for being swift to condemn but slow to commend the acts of a public servant. He voted in favor of the original ordinance, however.

THE LIQUOR ORDINANCE.

Passes the Council by a Vote of 3 to 1 —A Stringent Measure.

As will be seen by referring to our account of the proceedings of the trustees last Wednesday evening, and as appears in the ordinance itself which is published in this issue, Glendale is now as "dry" as a human ordinance can make it.

Glendale is a temperance community; if there is any of what is generally known as the "saloon element" in it, we have yet to discover it. We do not believe that a saloon could be established here or that it would be a paying proposition if established. There is, however, in this as in every intelligent community a large class of citizens who do not consider that their neighbors should attempt to regulate their private actions, and this class of our people have just reason to complain that the ordinance just passed is far more stringent in its provisions than is required to accomplish the greatest good. The trouble with it is that it purports to prohibit individuals from "having in their possession, using or giving away" any kind of spirituous liquors; it even goes to the length of saying in effect that the individual carrying a bottle of beer or wine across the sacred precincts of the city, may be arrested for "misdemeanor." Of course, it is known to every lawyer and a good many laymen that the courts will not sustain this interpretation, but it puts it in the power of any citizen to inform against his neighbor and cause his arrest, and gives to any petty peace officer of the municipality power to hale before a local magistrate anyone whom he fancies has broken the sacred ordinance—that the person so arrested could probably not be convicted, will not add to the respect which a legal enactment should command.

The objection which we have to the ordinance as a whole is that it cannot go to the length which it pretends and is therefore a humbug. Notwithstanding the demand from a portion of the people for the passage of this ordinance, we believe it would have been better for the trustees to have deferred action until such a time as it could have been put before the people for decision. We commend Mr. Parcher for his attempt to have the ordinance amended, altho it should have been amended still further than he proposed.

J. C. SHERER.

Miss R. M. Sherer spent Wednesday and Thursday of this week visiting her sister, Mrs. J. C. Thomas and family, at Highland Park.

A California Department in our Public Libraries

In his address delivered before the California Library Association at the meeting held February 20, at San Jose, Rufus P. Jennings, chairman of the California Promotion committee, said in part:

"There is another thought which I wish to give you . . . My suggestion is, in brief, that in every library in California, be it public or private, there be set apart a California department, wherein may be found books and pamphlets on all California subjects . . . Our products, our industries, our climate, our soils, our scenery are so diversified that they are almost past comprehension to the ordinary observer. Books are written on all these subjects, and also on all the different phases of the subjects as they pertain to different localities in the State.

"With complete information on the different features of the State our own people would come to learn much, especially in so far as it would relate to the interdependence of its various parts and they would obtain an intimate knowledge of many things that would be of commercial benefit to them in marketing their individual products, and also in the securing of California products instead of those of other States.

"If there could be arranged in every library in the State a complete bibliography of California, showing her romantic history, her peculiar topography, her unique climatic conditions, her unequaleld soils, her wondrous diversity of production, our people would learn much to their advantage, and those who come would comprehend something beyond their immediate vicinity. I need but cite you the fact that many people come to California believing that the chief, and sometimes, the only industry that is worth while it fruit raising. Thousands of people who locate in California know nothing of other portions of the State than those in which they first settle, and it takes them several years to acquire the knowledge that there are other opportunities equally as good and equally as beneficent to man.

"The California Promotion committee, in its library, endeavors to cover all of the possibilities of production in California, and in its publications it strives to place before the people accurate and positive information regarding every phase of California life. These publications it will be glad to place in every library in California, free of charge, for the good they will do in the broadening and developing of the possibilities of the commonwealth.

"It lies in the power of every community in the State to aid in this process of development by giving knowledge to its inhabitants through an adequate library containing, with the usual volumes found on library shelves such works as bear directly on our own commonwealth and her wonderful resources. The fact that a community has such a library will be of greater commercial benefit to it than any other individual advantage, for it will be prima facie evidence that the community is alive, wide-awake and energetic in all things.

Forest Lawn Cemetery

The old Mitchell place at the corner of San Fernando Road and Glendale Avenue, which was purchased three or four years ago by Mr. Treadwell for cemetery purposes, is rapidly being transformed under the experienced management of Mr. Wm. J. Blain into a beautiful park. We have not seen in Southern California such an ample spread of green sward as can be seen in one streth of over five acres in front of where the old Mitchell house stood. The grounds were formerly ornamented with some fine specimens of trees, some of them of rare kinds, which have been preserved and rejuvenated by intelligent care. The property is provided with a greenhouse where all the choice varieties of plants used in the ornamentation of the grounds are propagated. Of the old olive orchard which formerly was in front of the residence, the best trees have been preserved and their condition is in marked contrast with the neglected specimens of that hardy tree which are to be seen in so many other parts of the valley.

The main entrance is ornamented by a splendid archway of stone, the handiwork of Harry Stock of Glendale, who is engaged in building a large receiving vault also of stone, which when finished will be one of the most complete buildings of its kind in the state. The tract comprises 130 acres, about half of it running up to the hill top on the north, affording a beautiful outlook over the valley and is consequently well adapted to fine landscape effects, which will be worked out as rapidly as possible. A fine well affords an ample supply of water which being pumped into a reservoir of a half million gallon capacity on an elevated part of the tract gives good pressure for the general system of irrigating pipe which run through the cemetery. Mr. Blain laid out one or two of the large cemeteries in San Francisco and expects to accomplish as much for Forest Lawn. One of the great values of the work aside from most apparent purpose, is to demonstrate what is possible in the way of producing splendid effects in lawn growing and general ornamentation of grounds in Southern California notwithstanding the dryness of our climate and the need of irrigation in generous measure.

Card of Thanks

I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to the I. O. O. F. and many friends for their expressions of sympathy and great kindness during the illness and death of my beloved husband.

GLENDALE, CAL., FEBRUARY 22, 1908

The political pot has begun to boil. Somebody will get burned when the atmosphere gets properly heated.

Miss Shonts annexed a count the other day. Heiresses are going rather cheap nowadays in the United States; almost any old kind of a title seems to be able to buy one.

The new precinct of Tropico is bound to be heard from. It has two candidates for supervisor in the field already and the voters are being requested to get down from the fence.

At the time we go to press, the Japs have not captured Santa Monica, but still have that one-inch gun trained upon the spot where Bob Evans, admiral, is to be in several weeks from now.

Two gentlemen of El Centro who sent a wordy and sarcastic message of protest to Judge Wellborn of the United States Court about a recent ruling affecting that ambitious metropolis of the sub seas, now have to explain that they did not mean any contempt of court. Uncle Sam's buzz saw is a good thing to keep away from.

License Tax to be Modified

We are glad to note that the city trustees intend to make a modification of the licence ordinance. The imposition of a tax upon our various lines of business was an absolute necessity in the earlier days of our municipal existence when revenue had to be procured from some source until the taxes came in, but the necessity for it has largely passed.

The tax will probably not be entirely removed, but will be made so light that it will be burdensome upon no one who is engaged in business. One of the requisites to bring about the proposed change is that all delinquent licenses be paid up so that everyone concerned shall be put upon an equal footing.

It gives us a very comfortable feeling when we discover sometimes that in regard to something or other we are in accord with our Socialist neighbors, whose theories we are usually unable to digest.

In Los Angeles they have been protesting against what they deem the misapplication of a large sum of money which will be expended in the reception of Admiral Evans' fleet; and to a considerable extent we sympathize with them. We should much rather see the several thousands of dollars which are being contributed for that almost useless purpose turned into a more generally beneficial channel.

It must be borne in mind, however, that the money to be spent in this manner is a perfectly voluntary contribution by a number of citizens, and in spending it for this particular purpose they are clearly within their privilege. Furthermore, it is better that it should be put into circulation in this manner than that it should not circulate. Altogether, let us who are not contributing very heavily be content with giving the givers good advice.

Verging on Politics

The Hon. Chester F. Rowell, editor of the Fresno Republican, recently made the statement that "The executive department of our state government is directed by the hired servants of a foreign corporation. I am not guessing at it; I can prove it."

When as explicit a statement as this is made by a man of such high standing as Mr. Rowell, it should cause the people to sit up and take notice. In the same speech he quoted Mr. Herrin, the political representative of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Kentucky, as saying that "popular government is a farce."

It seems to us that the declaration of Mr. Rowell substantiates the assertion of Mr. Herrin. If we are dominated by a foreign corporation, the fault lies at the door of the people who are apparently satisfied to have it so. We have no doubt of the truth of Mr. Rowell's assertion. In the neighborhood of our state capitol during the session of a legislature, nobody thinks of denying that that body is dominated as he asserts the executive is; whether Gov. Gillette is or not, is not so self-evident a fact, altho we incline to the belief that Mr. Rowell knows what he is talking about.

Now, in the classic language of Boss Tweed, "What are you going to do about it?"

In Southern California Mr. Herrin's lieutenant is Walter F. Parker. He dominates our county conventions and shapes the ticket. He is able to do this because so many of our "good" citizens stand aloof from politics and do not go to the primaries. This aloofness is not good citizenship and is more responsible than anything else for the truth in Mr. Herrin's assertion, that "popular government is a farce."

Let these good citizens, if they wish to reform(?), endeavor to find out who represents Mr. Parker in their precinct and attend to the case of such representatives at the primary election in May.

A Sample Kicker

In the Fact and Comment department of the Los Angeles Times last Sunday, considerable space was given to comments upon a letter which hau been sent to that paper with a request that the editor "burn somebody up" out here in our beautiful burg for having the temerity to do some street work without his knowledge and approval. The editor of that department, however, being a level-headed and exceptionally well informed gentleman, sized up his correspondent correctly and gives him but cold comfort in his remarks upon the communication.

Putting behind us the temptation to be "real severe" in this case, we wish to show how utterly unreasonable and illogical is the complaint of this nonresident property owner, because there are others of his kind and probably sympathizers equally ignorant and prone to jump at conclusions. His complaint is that he was assessed $130 for street work on certain lots without his knowledge or consent. He charges that there was collusion between an individual property owner and the contractors to get the work done, the property owner to have his own frontage improved free of cost! Then the advertising was done in "an obscure paper not likely to reach the eyes of himself or any property owners in the subdivision." Further, that "it will be many years before there are any considerable number of persons living along the street so improved," etc.

Inferring from the fact that his "fine old eucalyptus trees had been damaged," we may reasonably infer that the street alluded to is "Lomita aveque." The complaining property owner must be very ignorant of the improvements that have been made in the neighborhood of his property during the last two years, if Lomita Park is the locality alluded to. In that time eighty houses have been erected there, being occupied, in nearly every case, by the owner. The move for the grading and sidewalking of the street was made by resident property owners. We do not know whether any resident was paid for the time contributed and the labor expended in securing the names of the owners of frontage to the petition or not; but if such was the case it was certainly legitimate.

As to question of notice. If the lot owner in question had taken the interest in the town in which his lot is situated, which all property owners should take, he could scarcely have evaded the acquisition of some knowledge of the proposed improvement. Had he not been ignorant of the law governing such improvements, he would have known that the matter had to be advertised several times in the local paper; an "obscure" sheet in comparison with the Los Angeles Times, perhaps; obscure precisely in the same sense that the lot owner is obscure in comparison with President Roosevelt—but let that pass. For a very small sum he could have procured the regular issues of the obscure sheet and have been informed at little expense of all matters pertaining to his property. The investment of, say $1.50 per year, might have saved him the bill of $130, for if he had been forewarned he might have exercised his influence in defeating the proposed improvement. If he had been the owner of a lot in Los Angeles, where the requisite legal notice of such proceedings is hidden in the crowded pages of a big daily newspaper, the probability is that he would have been as uninformed in regard to matters pertaining to his property there as he is in this case.

The notice of intention to improve Lomita avenue passed the council on August 7th and had been preceded by considerable discussion in the community while the petition was being circulated. On August 17th it was published in the NEWS. The ordinance ordering work done was published September 21st and the invitation for bids on September 28th. October 12th the award of contract was published. Aside from all this, notices were posted by the street superintendent on the street involved as to the proposed work.

As to collusion between the contractor and somebody else to have the work done and presumably to divide the profits, the idea is absurd. Two outside responsible parties bid on the work, the contract being awarded to the lower bidder. A local contractor provided with all machinery for doing the work refrained from bidding, not considering the job a desirable one.

The world is full of people who utterly ignore the fact that the Almighty has endowed them with the faculties of judgment, which should not be allowed to lapse utterly into uselessness for lack of action. They pay no attention to the possibilities of a case, but jump at any preposterous conclusion that their personal interest or feelings suggest. It is from this class of thinkless humans that the ranks of the kickers are continually being recruited.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale do ordain as follows:

Section 1. Any person, firm, corporation, club or association, that, within the City of Glendale, establishes, keeps, opens, maintains or carries on a place where spirituous, vinous, malt or mixed liquors or any alcoholic or intoxicating drinks are sold, kept for sale, offered for sale, furnished, distributed, divided, delivered or given away; or that, within said city, either as owner, employee, agent, servant, clerk or otherwise sells, keeps for sale, offers for sale, furnishes, distributes, divides, delivers or gives away any spirituous, vinous, malt or mixed liquors or any alcoholic or intoxicating drinks, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 2. Sec. 4. Every person who lets or leases any building, tenement or place owned by him or under his control within the City of Glendale, to be used, or permits the same to be used in violation of this Ordinance, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 5. Every person who, at any time, visits or is present at any place within the City of Glendale, where spirituous, vinous, malt or mixed liquors, or any alcoholic or intoxicating drinks are sold, kept for sale, offered for sale, furnished, distributed, divided, delivered or given away, in violation of this Ordinance, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 7. It shall be the duty of the City Marshal, his deputies and all police officers of the City of Glendale to put persons suspected of violating this Ordinance under the police surveillance, and to use all legal means in detecting and convicting persons violating this Ordinance, including the exercise of the right of search given by the State Law, and Chapter 3 of part 2 of Title Twelve of the Penal Code of the State of California, so far as the same does not now apply to actions or proceedings under this Ordinance, is hereby, so far as the same can be made applicable, made to apply and be in force in the City of Glendale.

Sec. 8. Any registered pharmacist, under the laws of this State, may sell intoxicating liquors for bona fide medical purposes in accordance herewith upon the written prescription of a physician entitled to practice medicine under the laws of the State of California, provided, however, that said prescription shall be written, signed and dated by the physician within twenty-four hours of the date of sale; that the name of the person applying personally for the prescription, and the name of the person for whose personal use the prescription is made shall be inserted therein by the physician issuing the same at the time the prescription is made or given; that the prescription shall be presented to and filed by the druggist before any sale or furnishing is made thereon; that all prescriptions shall be numbered and kept in regular succession by the druggist filling the same, on a separate file, convenient for and open and subject, during all business hours, to the inspection of the City Marshal and his deputy, and to any person who may be designated by the Board of Trustees of the said City; that only one sale shall be made on one prescription; that the prescription shall be given or written only when in the opinion of the physician such liquor is actually necessary as a medicine for the person named therein, and such prescription shall specify the kind and quantity of liquor to be furnished thereon, and any physician who shall give to or write for any well person, or person not in actual need of said liquors as a medicine, any prescription for any intoxicating liquors, either separately or compounded with other ingredients, or who shall violate or assist in violating or evading any of the provisions in this Ordinance, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, in addition to the penalty therefor herein specified, no intoxicating liquors shall thereafter be supplied, furnished, sold or delivered to any person by any druggist, upon the prescription of such physician.

Sec. 9. And it shall be unlawful for any druggist to allow the drinking on his premises, or upon any premises occupied or controlled by him, of any intoxicating liquors, or to permit any violation of this Ordinance in or upon any premises owned, occupied or controlled by him.

Sec. 10. Whenever the father, mother, brother, sister, wife, husband or guardian or any relative of any person, shall notify any druggist that such person, naming him, uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage and shall forbid such druggist from selling, bartering or giving to such person any intoxicating liquors, it shall be unlawful for any such druggist, after such notice, to let such person have any intoxicating liquors upon prescription, or otherwise.

Sec. 11. Every act in violation of this Ordinance shall, separately, or for each day of its continuance, be deemed a separate offense, and every person who shall in any manner encourage, aid, abet or assist in the violation of this Ordinance, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and any clerk, servant, agent or person committing any act in violation of this Ordinance shall be deemed guilty as principal.

Sec. 12. Any violation of this Ordinance, or any of the provisions thereof, shall constitute a misdemeanor, and every person found guilty of violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in the sum of not more than Three Hundred ($300.00) Dollars, or be imprisoned in the City Jail of the City of Glendale for not more than three months, or be punished by both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 13. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage of this Ordinance and cause the same to be published once in the Glendale News, a weekly newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City of Glendale, and thereupon and thereafter the same shall be in full force and effect.

AUDITORIUM.

"Eagle Tavern," which will be the last play to be offered, the week of February 24th, at the Los Angeles Auditorium, is a picture of New England in the earlier day, with all the honesty and simplicity that it possessed. It is not a caricature of the country; it is an honest portrayal of the people as they were, and every character is a type drawn from life.

Mrs. Andrews, author of "Kate Shannon," wrote "Eagle Tavern," and in its way it is just as perfect. It has been done in the East and acclaimed as a masterpiece. It is rural where the other is a society drama, but it is not the rural drama that you are used to. There are no pigs, no chickens, or cows on the stage; there are instead real people, in a real play with a good and sufficient love story and a depiction of actual events instead of a conventional hurrah surrounded by freaks. Every type is a true one. Mrs. Andrews drew them from persons of her personal acquaintance in the New England town which she knew and loved during her residence there. So you will see a true picture of perfect proportions and parts.

One scene shows the arrival at the tavern of an old-fashioned stage coach. Another shows the tavern's old porch. It is a play to awaken memories. Its appeal is to the heart.

Florence Stone will be seen as Rose Needham, who, like Longfellow's Priscilla, has just a fascinating hint of pagan in her sweet, Puritan nature.

Other features of interest will be the appearance in the cast of Fred G. Andrews and Sedley Brown. Mr. Andrews has the part of Uncle Ben, the lovable old landlord of "Eagle Tavern," a part which he has played before in the East. Mr. Brown will be hasty Peavey, the laziest man in the county." The appearance of the popular business manager for Mr. Ferris and the efficient stage director of the company will give the final touches to the play.

"Camille," a Special Announcement.

Dick Ferris announces for this week his final week of this season, two special matinees, at the Los Angeles Auditorium, Tuesday and Thursday, Feb. 25 and 27, of "Camille," Alexander Dumas' wonderful love tragedy, a play that has made millions weep, and that reaches every heart. Florence Stone will be seen in her wonderful interpretation of Camille, while Dick Ferris himself will play Armand.

Emil Parker has been spending a considerable portion of the past week in Los Angeles on account of the illness and death of his grandfather, Mr. Vache, one of the pioneers.

Several "overland" trips have been made to Pasadena and the Ostrich Farm this week by our tourists and winter visitors. They report the roads in poor condition in spots.

Guests on Friday of Mrs. M. V. Colburn were Mrs. Arthur Salsbury and son, Markland, Mrs. Bertram Moore, of Bay City, Mich., and Mrs. Salsbury and Miss Mary Salsbury of Rome, N. Y.

Miss Helen Best attended a reunion of a former Sunday School class in Los Angeles, the occasion being the birthday of a much-loved and popular teacher, Miss Chambers.

The Home Missionary Society of the Methodist-Episcopal church held a tea after their regular meeting on Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Julia Beers, Belmont street. Miss Sanborn of Los Angeles talked of plans being made for a Deaconess' Home in Los Angeles. after which refreshments were served.

In Symphony hall, Los Angeles, next Sunday at 3 o'clock p. m., Rev. C. J. Hall will lecture on "The Falsehoods and Blasphemies of the Liquor Traffic." He will pay particular attention to Mr. Busch of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing company, now at Pasadena, who has recently been talking from the dealers' standpoint.

The ladies of the P. E. O. are very busily working over their next literary program, as they are to discuss a question that bids fair to become one of national interest. It has to do with the arrival and consequences of the visit of the American fleet to our coast and their study of the topic brings to light questions of absorbing interest.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church met on Tuesday with Mrs. Ayers at Second and Cedar streets. Besides the consideration of the topics for the month the election of officers for the coming year occurred. Mrs. M. P. Harrison was made president, Mrs. M. E. Patterson vice president, while Miss Judson Harris was continued as secretary, Mrs. A. M. Ayers as treasurer, and Mrs. S. M. Galloway as secretary of literature.

A very genuine surprise was the birthday party planned by Mrs. Albert C. Anderson to celebrate Mr. Anderson's birthday on February 20th. Dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Norton of Hollywood, were present at the birthday feast prepared and their presence provided the excuse for the handsome floral decorations about the pretty home. Later the house was filled with guests bidden to while away the evening with a splendid game of whist followed by feasting. The prize of a very handsome rose-bedecked birthday cake was won by Miss Ida M. Waite. Several out-of-town guests were present.

A LIBRARY TEA.

One of the happy events of the week was the "Library tea" given to the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club and their guests, on Tuesday afternoon from two until five o'clock, by Mrs. John Hawkes in her handsome new home on Valley View Road. Those receiving with the hostess were her house guests, Mrs. James Gee and daughter, Miss Wanda; and Mrs. Shadford, of Ottumwa, Iowa.

California fruits were employed to artistic advantage in the decorative scheme. A handsome centerpiece for the dining table was built of pomelos, oranges and lemons, with their blossoms and foliage. Over archway and stairway, and surmounting snowy curtains were fine branches of olives, and bowls of lemon blossoms filled the rooms with fragrance, while Princess violets made a pleasing suggestion of spring. During the afternoon tea and dainty wafers were served. Mrs. Gee, an active worker in club and fraternal circles in her home city gave a charming talk on library work and civic improvement. Miss Emma Williams provided an instrumental number and Mrs. Sherwood a vocal solo. Among other out-of-town guests were Mrs. Judge Metz, of Sheridan, Iowa, a girlhood friend of the hostess, Mrs. Alfred Tonk, of Evanston, Ill., who is visiting her sister, Miss Ida Waite; and Mrs. Wood of Los Angeles.

A HAPPY BIRTHDAY DINNER.

To honor the birthday of her charming and talented daughter, Mrs. Menzo Williams, of North Glendale, very pleasantly entertained on Tuesday evening at six o'clock with an elaborately planned birthday dinner. Among those who were present with gifts and happy congratulations was the aunt of the sweet honoree, Miss Emma Williams who deferred her return to Germany in order to be present on this occasion. She has spent several months visiting in our locality with her many friends and relatives. Music and gay conversation supplemented the feasting, and sweet spring blossoms offered their best wishes of happiness, with an outpouring of sutble fragrance for their sister who, that night, said "good-bye" to her "teens" and tip-toed to the threshold of young womanhood.

Reception to Rev. G. Frackenthal

Odd Fellows, Hall was well filled last Thursday evening with an audience representing every church in the city, on the occasion of the reception accorded to Rev. Mr. Frackenthal, who has lately come to Glendale and is in charge of St. Mark's church. The ladies had been at work all day and the results were most pleasing to the eye. Long festoons of greenery were suspended from the ceiling, radiating to four quarters of the room, entirely disguising the fact that it was a public hall and in connection with cosy corners adorned with rugs and bric-a-brac vases of flowers and beautiful blossoms, giving the rooms the aspect of a private reception room.

The first hour was devoted to social intercourse and in making the newcomer acquainted with everybody and everybody acquainted with everybody else. The programme was delightfully informal and brief. Miss Emma Pulliam and Miss Emma Williams rendered piano solos which were highly appreciated. Mr. James McLafferty recited "Antony's Address to the Romans" in excellent style, and then followed brief and appropriate remarks from the pastors of the different denominations who were present. The Rev. Mr. Hoar of the Sanitarium Advent church made the first of these pleasant impromptu speeches, followed by Rev. S. L. Ward of the Presbyterian; Rev. N. J. Burton of the Methodist, and Rev. W. F. Stone of the Baptist church. Then the Rev. Mr. Dyer, who was one of the first ministers connected with the Episcopal church in Glendale, away back in 1889 and '90, closed the symposium of welcoming remarks and the guest of the evening, Rev. G. Frackenthal, responded appropriately and with considerable feeling to the many kind expressions which had been uttered by his colleagues of other denominations. Mr Edgar W. Pack, introduced the speakers.

The affair was a most successful one from every point of view and those present expressed the wish in more than one instance that such occasions might be of more frequent occurrence as tending to show the unity of spirit and purpose among the different denominations represented by the churches of our city.

Much credit is due the ladies of St. Mark's Guild for the work which made the hall so attractive and for their general supervision which made the affair so successful.

INCLINE RAILROAD TO MOUNT HOLLYWOOD.

The city council next week will grant a franchise for an incline railroad to the top of Mount Hollywood, the highest peak in Griffith Park.

Application for a franchise has been made by a syndicate of Hollywood men. Col. J. W. Eddy, owner of the Angels' Flight railway, was granted a franchise several years ago and the time has come for it to be renewed again if he is to build the road.

The projectors argued that Col. Eddy had not done anything in years, while they were prepared to build at once if they should get consideration.

Such well-known men as J. R. Toberman, John Moore, H. C. Draves, Harry Gordon, George H. Dunlop, G. H. Field, C. J. Wade, John Dick, J. J. Steadman, the Walkers and a dozen others are back of the new enterprise, which contemplates connections with the Los Angeles-Pacific lines. —Northwest Enterprise.

Mr. Beldin on the Situation

J. C. Beldin had a good audience at Odd Fellows' hall Tuesday evening to hear him discuss the financial and industrial situation from a socialistic standpoint.

Mr. Beldin believes among other things that there is no necessity for any intrinsic value in money; that the fiat of the government is sufficient to make it go. He asserted that during the panic of '93 and '94, practically all mortgaged property went into the hands of the big financial institutions; that when the "money power" got ready to do so, it brought about good times again and the property then passed into the hands of individual owners, to be taken from them again whenever the financial trust is ready to take such action. In brief, according to Mr. Beldin, panics are brought about by the bankers in order to sweep all mortgaged lands into the possession of the banks.

He arraigned the government in terms of proper severity for its action in going to the relief of Wall street during the late financial crisis. President Roosevelt missed the opportunity of his life in failing to refuse government aid in this crisis. He should have issued fiat money in quantities sufficient to put every unemployed man to work.

The impression produced upon the minds of the audience was that this is a pretty rotten old government, and that all bankers, being public enemies, ought to be exterminated wite neatness and disparch.

VALENTINE PARTY.

Mrs. Sinclair of First street near Verdugo Road, helped her daughter, Miss Esther, to receive at a Valentine party, Saturday last. The house was beautifully decorated in red and at the plates of every little guest was a small heart-shaped receptacle filled with candy. After dinner a dance was indulged in to the music of violin and piano. The following are the names of the guests who were present:

Fay Minkler, Cordelia Croad, Grace Shropshire, Dorothy Gilson, Sarah Burton, Ruby Vose, Benjamin Nichols, Alfred Knight, Frederick Nichols, Charles Dofflemyer, Raymond Vose, Randall Hyer, Chaffee Burton, Anson Pitcher, Homer Allen, Genevieve Allen, Dorothy Dow, Arthur Knight.

Advertising

The following is commended to those of our business men who do not seem to agree with the opinion here expressed:

"If there is one enterprise on earth that a 'quitter' should leave severely alone, it is advertising," says John Wanamaker in Newspaperdom. "To make a success of advertising, one must be prepard to stick to it like a barnacle on a boat's bottom. He should know before he begins it that he must spend money—lots of it. Somebody should tell him, also, that he cannot hope to reap results commensurate with his expenditure early in the game. Advertising does'nt jerk; it pulls. It begins very gently at first but the pull is steady. It increases day by day, and year by year, until it exerts an irresistible power. It is likened to a team pulling a very heavy load. A thousand spasmodic, jerky pulls will not budge the load, while one-half the power exerted in steady effort will start and keep it moving. There are three ways to make advertising pay, and these are the only ways. There are no others. First, is to keep at it; second, is to keep at it; third is to keep at it."

ASTRONOMY VI.

The Sun's Unknown Journey.

In noting and measuring the distances of the stars, astronomers were early led to the interesting inference that the sun, with his attendant planets and their satellites, is traveling in a mighty orbit of his own. What the shape of the orbit may be, whether a straight line or an ellipse, and if the latter, what the size of it is, it would take hundreds and perhaps thousands of years to determine.

At present only two facts of this unknown journey are known: the direction and the speed.

The difficulty of the problem will be at once apparent when we consider that the only objects by which we can judge of the sun's motion must be the other stars, and as we know they are in constant and rapid motion themselves, "It is indeed astonishing" to quote Sir George Airy," that among all the chaotic heap of miscellaneous movement among all this drift of cosmical atoms, of the laws of whose motion we know absolutely nothing, it should be possible to place the finger on one small portion of the sum total, to all appearance indistinguishably mixed up with the rest, and to declare, with full assurance, that this particular portion of the whole is due to the proper motion of our own system." The problem has, however, been attacked by successive astronomers, with different data and methods of research, who have, without exception found the solar motion directed nearly to the same point, and the resulting determinations being all in substantial agreement, there seems no reasonable doubt that the difficult question of the sun's motion in space has been settled with some approximation to truth.

Sir William Herschell was the first to suggest, in 1783, the probable motion of the solar system, and he imagined the path of the sun to be elliptical like that of the planets. Following this idea, Maedler, the celebrated Russian astronomer, thought there was some evidence of the sun and his system revolving round a central body at the rate of about 150 million miles a year. The central orb, according to Maedler, was the great star Alcyone, the brightest object of the Pleiades group. This is, however, no more than a romantic speculation for which there is absolutely no ground, and while it is highly probable that the sun is describing an orbit round some central body, or central point, what it is and where situated we have as yet no indication.

The fact that the stars, which form our only guide posts, so to speak, are also in motion, makes the problem very complicated, and were there only a few of them available for reference, it could never have been solved. There are, however, thousands of stars which can be used for the investigation; and by making many thousands of observations, extended over long periods of time, it has been found that the motions tend to neutralize each other, so that the problem can be dealt with as if the stars were at rest.

If we are traveling through space it is obvious that we are approaching apparent positions of the stars. This idea may be made clear by the familiar illustration of a ship at sea approaching a harbor at night. Imagine the entrance to the harbor marked by two lights, one on either side, while the ship is yet a great way out, the two lights appear very close together, but as she gets nearer they appear to separate more and more, until as the ship enters the harbor, the two lights have separated so completely that one is on the right hand, and the other on the left. As the ship leaves the harbor, the lights appear to draw together closer and closer the farther the ship recedes from them. Similarly the stars are observed to spread away from the point in the heavens towards which the sun seems to be moving. Those in opposite direction seeming to draw closer together.

The investigation has been conducted with the greatest care by many able astronomers, and as the result of many independent observations and calculations it has been established that the solar system is moving towards a point not far from the great star Vega in the constellation Lyra.

Previous to the invention of the spectroscope, and the discovery that motion in the line of sight could be calculated by measurement of the light waves coming from the stars, all estimates of the speed of the sun's motion through space were mere guess work. But the spectroscopic method supplies exactly the information we require, and which we could obtain in no other way.

We cannot, of course, see the motion of the sun, any more than a person traveling by railway at night can see the motion of the train or a voyager on a ship at sea, can see the motion of the vessel. It is only by seeing objects passed in our journey on either side, or approaching objects ahead and receding from other objects in the rear, that we can judge of motion in either case. It is exactly the same with the motion of the solar system, except that the objects passed on either side are at almost infinite distances—too far, indeed, for us to obtain from them any indication of the speed of our journey. The objects ahead are also practically at infinite distances from us. It is therefore fortunate that we have in the spectroscope, a means of measuring our velocity of approach toward the objects ahead, which is not in the least affected by distance. If we can only get the faintest glimmer of light from a star the spectroscope will inform us the rate of its motion towards or away from us.

As both the sun and the stars are moving, the problem is to separate from the resulting observed motion that which belongs to the sun, and that which pertains to the stars. A careful study of the radial motion of a large number of stars, as revealed by the spectroscope, discloses the fact that about as many are approaching as are receding, and by a judicious selection of the stars most favorably situated for the investigation, it has been found possible to eliminate the consequences of their individual motions, and judge of the sun's motion independently.

The results of the inquiry are variously stated by different astronomers at from 8 to 11 miles per second.

Professor Vogel of Berlin who conducted a most elaborate investigation of this subject, arrived at the conclusion that a speed of about eight miles a second would approximately represent the rate at which the solar system is travelling on its unknown journey. This carries us, every day of 24 hours, 700,000 miles nearer to Vega, or over 250 million miles in a year. But even at this enormous speed, it would take us 180,000 years to reach the nearest star!

We can only tell that the sun and his system are traveling towards a certain point in the sky at the present time, but it is not probable that the sun would imply motion on a straight line, and all the facts of celestial mechanics require him to move in a curved orbit. The question as to when he will turn sufficiently to give an indication of its shape and extent, we must leave as a legacy to posterity, content if we have faithfully recorded our observations of speed and positions as seen by us in our brief day, for the guidance of future generations of astronomers.

AT THE GLENDALE LIBRARY.

The new books at the library continue popular and there is a great demand for magazines. The trustees appreciate contributions of the latter which come in from time to time, but would like to make the special request that persons who have files of such or single copies which they do not care for will please send them to the library, where the best use will be made of them. Files of certain old magazines which are usually of no use in the garret, are often of value for reference.

The following are some of the contributions which have not been reported and the list will be concluded next week:

Mrs. Farrell, one year Colliers, one year Saturday Evening Post, two miscellaneous magazines; Mrs. Wells, four McClures, two Outwest, two Pacific Monthly, nine miscelleaneous magazines; Mr. Wells, five Travel magasines, five Circle, four miscellaneous papers; publishers send regularly Glendale News, Independent, Fellowship, Home Herald; Mrs. Stanley, two Signs of Times; Mrs. Wells, three Signs of Times, four Springfield Republican, one McClures, one Rural California; Mrs. D. Fitch, one Life and Health; Mrs. Stanley, two Sign of Times; Mrs. Pack, eleven magazines; Mrs. Pitcher, eleven magazines; Miss Burlingham, five circle; Miss Patterson, fifteen miscellaneous magazines; Mrs. Stanley, five magazines; Mrs. Wells, two papers; Mrs. Stanley, two current magazines; Mrs. Hunt, twenty-two Literary Digest, one current magazine; Mrs. Wells, Defender; Mrs. Hunt, six miscellaneous magazines, one current magazine; Mrs. Stanley, six late magazines, one current Cosmopolitan, one Review of Reviews, one World of Today, Sign of Times, one Golfers' magazine, ten Colliers; Mrs. Farrell, one and one-half years Ladies Journal; Dr. Hunt and R. E. Beers, twenty motor magazines and cycle and auto journals.

The following reviews are of two of the new books received at the library:

"The Four Corners,"
By Amy E. Blanchard.

This is one of the most charming stories for younger readers and is beautiful and wholesome in tendency. It tells of the homely, everyday being and doing, going and coming of a group of Virginia children, who possess individuality and character, which is consistently drawn throughout. Their trials, longings, recreations, escapades and sacrifices are all told in such a natural, life-like way that the older reader is pleasantly carried back to childhood days. At Thanksgiving Jack wrote: "I am thankful that I don't like rice pudding and that I do like molasses on my batter cakes. I am thankful that old clothes don't last as long as new ones, and that people don't make such a fuss when you get spots on them or tear them."

To the person familiar with the south the darkey dialect and droll negro philosophy is delightful. "Ole Unc" Landy say:—"Dese yer no 'count young niggahs what so busy tryin' to be sma't ain' no time to larn sense."

"The Fruit of the Tree,"
By Edith Wharton.

This book is among the latest publications of Charles Scribners' Sons, and is a factory town story of more than usual merit and comprehensiveness, dealing as it does with various subjects of practical importance in a strong and penetrating manner. The vexatious interdependence of capital and labor, the spiritual mental and temperemental inharmonies of conjugal life, the unity of thought and feeling of those of like psychological development and other questions are treated in a manner displaying more than ordinary insight and from a clear mental plan from which there exhales fine soul perception. The steadfast conscious conviction of right and justice in the mind of a high, pure character in the committing of an act against all established codes, may go far in extenuation of the act, but does not prevent the reader from feeling a shadow cast over closing scenes. The mind-mature reader will find food for thought in the book while the story lover will be interested in the constant change and activity throughout.

WAR TO ORDER

. . . . By the Yellow Reporter. . .

An Associated Press dispatch from Santa Monica reports Japanese practicing with a pivot gun on Point Duma, getting the range of the spot where Admiral Evans' fleet is to anchor.

Seven little Japs with a pivot gun
Where the cliffs of Duma are,
Ring the alarum, run, run, run,
Let loose the dogs of war.

Seven little Japs ashootin' at the moon,
They'll maybe hit it, too,
Oh, quick cut loose that war balloon,
Now, Teddy, its' up to you!

Send a wireless quick to Captain Bob,
And another one to Teddy;
The little Japs are onto the job
The moon is plugged already.

And that's the reason we see blood
Where it hadn't ought to be,
The Pacific ocean's turned to mud
By a Jap conspiracy!

And wadin' through I see them come
All clad in khaki suits,
A billion Japs—dry shod by gum,
Which same is in their boots.

They're goin' to school in 'Frisco town,
Their fleet is in Tar Flat,
The Golden Gate is upside down,
We can't get out of that!

Alas, alas, for woe is me,
And woe for everybody,
A million billion Japs I'll see,
If I have one more toddy.

I'll start a war for thirty cents,
And bloody, too, I guess,
I'll crowd it full of dark events,
Per Associated Press.

And if it is too tame for you,
So that you feel despondent,
I'll then arrange to name for you,
A special correspondent!

A CHINESE BANQUET.

In the Realms of Tsi-an.

(Contributed.)

We had been looking forward for some time to a novel entertainment and our anticipation became delightful realization on St. Valentine's night, when a jolly party of us wended our way through Chinatown to a swell restaurant (Tsoy Far Low), there to partake of a Chinese banquet given by a friend who had lived in China for some years and spoke the language fluently.

We were conducted to a private banqueting room at one end of which was an altar with many offerings of delicious candy, flowers, and fruit, also a number of red paper documents, Chinese visiting cards, left for the "God," whose full length portrait was at the back of the altar. I am afraid that very little candy remained for the poor "God," after our invasion, and sad to say, we even abstracted a few of the visiting cards!

We were rather doubtful as to how Oriental cooking would affect our Occidental palates and were agreeably surprised to find that everything, even birds' nest soup, tasted very good.

The dinner was served on a round table and we had quaint stools instead of chairs. At each place was a pair of ivory chopsticks, which our host, himself an expert, showed us how to use. Some of the guests became quite efficient and disdained anything so commonplace as a fork, but the writer was glad to revert to that humble, but useful article, at frequent intervals. The menu was as follows:

Chicken Giblets and Pork Spare Ribs
Bird's Nest Soup
Stuffed Duck
Fish, Cooked with Young Bamboo Shoot and Celery
(very nice)
Chicken with Chopped Walnuts
(and "other things")
(heap good)

At this stage of the game we were told there would be an interval so we left the table and proceeded to amuse ourselves in divers ways. The gentlemen enjoyed smoking "Shook Yin," (tobacco) in various kinds of pipes—meerschaum and hookahs or Chinese water pipes, odd looking affairs, and not so satisfactory for every day purposes as a common clay or corn cob, but exceedingly picturesque.

The ladies amused themselves by sampling the "god's candy and prying into things generally, in the usual feminine way!

During this time the Chinese waiter had been clearing and re-arranging the table and soon announced that the "second act" was ready to proceed. So we reseated ourselves to attack with fresh vigor the savory viands which appeared in the following order:

Squab—Eaten with the Fingers
Chicken Smothered in Mushrooms
Chicken Wing (Stuffed)
Shrimp Omelette, with little Bowls of Rice and Preserved Eggs and Cucumbers
Shrimp Dumpling
Bundoes (Chinese Pastry)
Almond Paste (delicious) Tea

All during the meal we drank "San Shoo" (Chinese wine, unfermented). This was served from little teapots, in tiny liquor glasses and on the table were lichee nuts, burnt almonds, melon seeds, preserved ginger and one large orange and one apple, cut up in sections, with the peel left on. It was great fun to pick up the burnt almonds with chopsticks, though somewhat tantalizing, when, having about achieved the difficult feat, somebody else would pounce down upon the prize and take it away. "There's many a slip 'twixt chopstick and lip."

The banquet lasted about three hours and on leaving we all shook hands with the proprietor of the restaurant and afterwards made a little tour through the streets of Chinatown, which were decorated with beautiful Chinese lanterns for their New Year. We paid a visit to one of the leading merchants who gave us a cordial welcome and treated every one to cigars, etc., and finally turned our steps homeward.

Among the party were two or three prominent citizens of Glendale, the others being "Angelenos," and every one of us voted the affair most delightfully unique and enjoyable, and our host "a jolly good fellow" and we felt we could say with truth, "Ho duck-ee," Chinese for "What a good time we have had!"

GLENDALE VEDSUS COMPTON.

No Doubt About This One.

The basket ball game of last Saturday on the home grounds was a notable event. The girls of the Glendale team were determined that there should be no room for doubt as to the score this time and went at it with a grim determination to show their opponents from the corn country that Glendale is invincible. There were a few excellent plays made by the visitors, but from start to finish they were outclassed. The final score was 30 to 23, in favor of Glendale, and the close was marked by tremendous applause from the largest crowd of sympathizing spectators that has ever assembled on the High School grounds to witness a game.

GREATEST LUMBER CUT.

More lumber was cut in the United States last year than in any other year in its history. The enormous amount of 37,550,736 boards feet was produced, and the mill value of this was $621,151,388. In addition, there were produced 11,858,260,000 shingles, valued at $24,155,555, and 3,812,807,000 lath, valued at $11,490,570. On the whole, it is safe to say that the present annual lumber cut of the United States approximates 40 billion feet, and that the total mill value of the lumber, lath and shingles each year produced is not less than $700,000,000. These figures give some idea of how vast is the lumber industry and how great is the demand for its products.

A glance at the kinds of lumber produced shows very clearly the passing of white pine and oak, one the greatest softwood and the other the greatest hardwood which the forest has ever grown. Since 1899 the cut of white pine has fallen off more than 40 per cent., while that of white oak has fallen off more than 36 per cent. Today yellow pine leads all other woods in amount cut, while Douglas fir—and this will be a surprise to many—comes second. Since 1899 the cut of Douglas fir has increased 186 per cent. Louisiana is the foremost yellow pine state, with Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas following in order. Washington produces by far the greatest amount of Douglas fir.

A comparison of the lumber producing states shows that since 1899 there have been many changes in their relative rank. Washington, which in 1899 stood sixth, now leads, while Wisconsin, which eight years ago led all others, is now third. In the same period Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi, Idaho and California made great strides as lumber-producing states, though, on the other hand, the amount produced in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Indiana and Ohio fell off anywhere from 29 to 54 per cent.

The highest-priced native woods are walnut, hickory and ash, and the cheapest are larch and white fir. From the fact, however, that since 1899 the average increase in the price of lumber has been 49 per cent. it will not be long before cheap woods are few and far between.

Figures upon the lumber cut of the United States in 1906 are contained in Circular 122 of the Forest Service, which can be had upon application to the Forester, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A WONDER CHILD.

The Los Angeles Express of February first publishes an article on the scientific work of Dr. W. L. Woodruff, of Long Beach, in the rearing of an infant that was, up to the time he was three weeks old, a very delicate child and gave no promise of ever being otherwise. But under the scientific feeding of Dr. Woodruff and his wife, the child rapidly grew in strength, so that at the age of three months he walked. And now at the age of six months he is a regular little athlete, his flesh being as solid as that of an adult; his muscles being plainly perceptible and wonderfully developed, and the little fellow enjoys doing "stunts" that it would puzzle an older person to do. At this early age he shows a fondness for books, but the doctor expresses an intention of keeping him away from them as long as possible. The child has never had a shoe or stocking on his little feet, nor has he ever worn flannels, and his bed is always made out on a screen porch where he gets the best air going. It would be interesting to watch the development of this child until he attains his growth.—South Pasadean.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—The great fleet of battleships, cruisers and torpedo boats coming from the Atlantic is on the long leg of its journey, having rounded the horn on its way up the Pacific coast, with San Francisco as its objective point. While leisurely proceeding along its way, stopping to accept the hospitality of South American nations, the fleet is giving time to the people of San Francisco for the preparations for one of the greatest celebrations ever seen in this country.

To those unaccustomed to the presence of a large fleet of war vessels the full significance of the spectacle that will be presented in San Francisco's harbor during the visit of this fleet is not understood. There has never before been anything just like this spectacle will be. There have been many assemblages of warships, at various times of the world's history, but it may be said of the coming gathering in San Francisco bay that never has there been one that will carry so much of the spectacular as this.

On the Eastern coast there is no opportunity such as is offered on this bay, to have the vessels so congregated as to have them all in array under the eyes of the spectators at one time. At New York, with the vessels of an immense naval parade strung out over many miles it was impossible to see but a few at a time. At Hampton Roads, at the time of the departure of the fleet, the vista was one of ocean, which dwarfed the vessels and made the spectacle appear small. Even at that time there were not so many vessels present as will be in San Francisco harbor when the fleet comes.

In San Francisco bay there is an appearance of an amphitheater, and vast multitudes of sight-seers can congregate on the surrounding hills of the city and look down upon such a concourse of ships as was never before gathered together in all time. It will be the sight of a life time, and it is probable that never again will those now living have a similar opportunity to gaze upon such a scene. These vessels are the highest type in existence and the congregated fleet will represent the flower of the second navy of the world, and in addition to the vessels which formed the parade of the Atlantic fleet at Hampton Roads, will have the combined Pacific fleet as well forming such an aggregation as even the people of the well protected Atlantic coast have never seen.

This assemblage of warships will be an object lesson in another sense. It will give to visitors some adequate idea of the immensity of the Bay of San Francisco, for this great fleet will swing at anchor with not the slightest hindrance to the merchant marine which will assemble from all quarters of the globe to carry on the business of the port.

San Francisco is busily engaged in preparing to receive and care for not only the twenty-four thousand men and officers of the fleet, but of those other thousands of visitors who will flock to the city to see the wondrous display, and participate in the week of festivities which are being arranged. San Francisco is rapidly resuming its old conditions, and the hundreds of millions of dollars which have been spent in rehabilitation since the fire have made a wonderful change in the past few months. This rehabilitation will also be one of the sights offered to those who visit the city to assist in welcoming the fleet.
